

The Object class's wait, notify and notifyAll methods

The wait, notify, and notifyAll methods, are used to manage some monitor lock situations, to prevent threads from blocking indefinitely.

Because these methods are on Object, any instance of any class, can execute these methods, from within a synchronized method or statement.