

Getting Started

Leaders and teams face uncertainty and ambiguity as part of their work. How can they stay focused and positive to deliver on results over the long haul? The answer is a combination of many factors that, collectively, are called “grit.”

In this course, you vicariously join a team of professionals in the wilderness as they focus and reflect on those factors.

Watch this course individually or as part of team, and reflect on each lesson. As you watch, ask yourself the following:

1. What types of challenges are you facing in your work environment?
2. What connections can you make between each lesson and your performance? Your team’s performance?
