File and Directory Management

So much of what we might want to do with files and directories is renaming, copying, moving and deleting them.

Occasionally, we might also want to make a global search and replacement, on the contents of an existing file.